(PAF 9270) Online courses suck, however the weekly asynchronous learning style did help with regimenting the work load throughout the semester

(PAF 9270) I liked that the weekly breakdown was pretty organized on the details. I liked that the professor allowed flexibility if needed to due to circumstances.

(PAF 9270) Excellent class 100 applicable to my MPA and my current job, the assignments and lectures also help me to implement differents actions in my career to improve my action plans . Thank you Professor Valente. Carlos Martin

(PAF 9270) This course was by far one of my favorites. It was very organized, and I knew what to expect each week. I would only suggest that when making changes to the final that, students know a few weeks to a month in advance. That way, students know what to expect.

(PAF 9270) Data is often viewed as hard to comprehend and boring. Thank you for making the course highly interactive, and easy to understand, while challenging enough to ensure learning and growth. I have improved my Excel skills and earned the human subjects research certificate as a result of attending this class. I leave feeling more confident to discuss and consume data and also more marketable in the ever-competitive workforce.

(PAF 9270) Thank you, Professor Valente, for your excellent, well-crafted course and exciting assignments. Your teaching helped me enjoy data again, and It even inspired me to take the Google Data Analytics Course to organize my previous eclectic experiences

(PAF 9270) I was nervous about taking an asynchronous class, but Professor Valente was absolutely wonderful - very responsive and very organized!

(PAF 9270) N/A

(PAF 9270) Loved this course especially that it was asynchronous and that worked for my schedule. My only qualm is that I did not practice any formal speaking or give any presentations. I would have liked to have built more rapport with fellow classmates as it was hard to coordinate our schedules.
